

Roseville 2109

Kenna Son
St. Albans

Kenna S.
Jan. 26, 09
English

How do I see Roseville, California in 2109? Though many things about Roseville will change and grow, the standards on which Roseville was built 100 years ago will continue to lead us into the future. One of the main priorities of the city is education. The first school in Roseville was a one-room school house built in 1822. Since that time, many schools have been added so that all ages and grades can attend school. By 2109, the number of schools and children going to those schools are likely to have increased a whole lot and will probably include four year universities.

With a small community way of life in a large city, the growth in population will continue at a steady rate. As an eleven year old girl, all the new and improved shopping centers are sure to keep me from moving away, as well as attract many newcomers. With all this shopping and growth comes jobs. Big companies have always been drawn to Roseville with its wide open space and fair land prices. In the future, I see this open space filled with a very fancy, new medical center. Presently Kaiser Permanente is the largest employer in the city.

The advance thinking City Council has laid the foundation for Roseville to be a top notch place to live. The city of Roseville, California has a very colorful past. If the past is any prediction of things to come, then Roseville's future looks bright.