Violence Against Women Act (VAWA) and the Housing Choice Voucher (HCV) Program

The Violence Against Women and Justice Department Reauthorization Act of 2005 (VAWA) extends certain rights and protections to qualified Housing Choice Voucher (HCV) assisted tenants and qualified family members of tenants who are victims of criminal domestic violence, dating violence, sexual assault and stalking.

Protection from Denial of Public Housing Assistance and Admission

Under the VAWA, if an applicant or participant in the HCV program is otherwise eligible and qualified or assistance or admission, the fact that the applicant or participant is or has been a victim of domestic violence, dating violence, or stalking (as these terms are defined in the VAWA) is not an appropriate basis for denial of program assistance or for denial of admission.

Protection from Eviction

VAWA also provides that an incident or incidents of actual or threatened domestic violence, dating violence, or stalking will not be construed as a serious or repeated violation of the lease by the victim or threatened victim of that violence and shall not be good cause for terminating the assistance, tenancy, or occupancy rights of the victim of such violence.

While criminal activity directly relating to domestic violence, dating violence, or stalking engaged in by a member of a tenant's household or any guest or other person under a tenant's control shall not be cause for termination of assistance, tenancy or occupancy rights—provided that the tenant or an immediate member of the tenant's family is the victim or threatened victim of such violence—owners and managers are permitted to bifurcate a lease in order to evict, remove or terminate assistance to a tenant or lawful occupant who engages in criminal acts of physical violence against family members and others, without evicting or penalizing the victim(s).

Portability to a New Location

HCV households in good standing may move to another location after one (1) year of assistance and their assistance will follow them. However, the law does not permit portability if the family was in violation of its lease when it moved.

VAWA permits portability if a family has otherwise complied with all other HCV requirements, but moved out of the assisted dwelling unit in violation of the lease in order to protect the health or safety of an individual who is or has been the victim of domestic violence, dating violence or stalking, and who reasonably believed he or she was imminently threatened by harm from further violence if he or she remained in the assisted dwelling unit.

Certification

Tenants seeking protection against eviction or termination of assistance under VAWA may be required to complete and submit a HUD-approved certification form certifying that the individual is a victim of domestic violence, dating violence, or stalking, that the incident or incidents in question are bona fide incidents of such actual or threatened abuse and otherwise meet the requirements of VAMA protection.

Certification shall include the name of the perpetrator and may be accomplished by completion and delivery of the above-referenced HUD-approved certification form mentioned above, by providing documentation signed, under penalty of perjury, by an employee, agent, or volunteer of a victim service provider, an attorney, or a medical professional from whom the victim (the tenant or another member of the tenant's immediate family) has sought assistance in addressing domestic violence, dating violence, or stalking or the effects of the abuse, or by producing and delivering, a Federal, State, tribal, territorial, or local police or court record.

Failure to provide certification within fourteen (14) business days after receipt of a written request to do so may result in the loss of VAWA protections.

Confidentiality

Information provided by way of certification must be retained in confidence by a property owner, manager or public housing authority. This information may not be entered into any shared database nor provided to any related entity except to the extent disclosure is requested or consented to by the individual in writing or as necessary for use in an eviction proceeding or as otherwise required by law.

Additional Limitations

The above-referenced protections are circumstantially specific. Nothing contained in VAWA prevents terminating assistance, tenancy or eviction for any violation not involving domestic violence, dating violence, or stalking. Additionally, if an actual and imminent threat to other tenants or those employed at or providing service to the property can be demonstrated, a tenant will not be protected from termination of tenancy and eviction under the VAWA.
